There is puzzle, to figure in these poems, work with friends, over the years.

There are worlds your eyes cannot see,

Nor your hands touch.

Your soul, is present in every world,
So, your heart can feel.

When you dream, where are you?

And when a light shines in your heart,
Where is it from?

2

As you are white as snow,

And red as blood,

And your hair is dark as ebony,

And the queen is jealous,

The world pushes you ,

Into a forest

Of loneliness.

When you were in the forest of your own

thoughts,

You had to find the seven dwarves,

In your own body,

Your brain, and spine,

Find the silver flow of the Soul.

4

You keep your attention,

Find the Sparkle.

The beasts of the forest,

Won't find you,

When your soul drives

What you do.

Don’t trust the false knight

Nor the sage,

Don’t trust the queen

And don’t accept

The apple,

She gifts

You know it is poison,

If it has your body shiver,

And puts your soul to sleep.

Do what brings your soul joy,

The Prince,
If you read,

The Fairy-tale,

Is

Searching for you.

8

The One,

Your Soul,

Is a spark of His.

9

Fill your body,

With the light of the soul,

You spark that in soulful things.

10

Forget the world,

Your awareness, your heart,

Disappears into that Silver Sparkle,

A Sparkle of joy,

The Soul Shining through.

11

And when your body

Is all that light,

You enter worlds

Of light.

12

And if you found that sparkle,

Forget the dwarves,

Your good friends,

For the One,

Will soon be finding you.
